Did You Know That With the New Regulation...

...the language your child will study in depends on what the other families vote for?

The voting percentages for each language will determine how many groups will be established for each one.

...we're going back to language-based lines?

Whether you choose Valencian or Spanish, your child will study subjects in both languages. However, only by choosing Valencian can you ensure that your child becomes proficient in both!

...it could happen that the children no longer continue with their reference teacher?

Groups will be established based on the results of the language consultation. In schools with more than one "line," if your choice does not align with the majority of your child's classmates, the groups will need to be restructured.

...the free availability of textbooks is at risk?

The number of groups for each language may change every school year, complicating the reuse and transfer of materials year after year.
